Subject: The enemy of good cops everywhere

Captain Faller, Chief Saco,

The behavior and attitude of Stephen LeBert:

<http://www.cnn.com/2015/07/28/us/massachusetts-detective-dashcam/index.html>

<https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=asnLQ8Ekwqg>

..is what I imagine is one of every good cop's nightmares. I can't imagine any officer feeling good about anyone who elevates public distrust and enmity towards law enforcement. I can only imagine that makes their jobs harder, less rewarding, and more dangerous. I don't know if you have more than one option for how to do it, but above all, I think it's your job responsibility to protect the public from the kind of human behavior everyone has now seen from Stephen LeBert. There's no acceptable excuse for it. None. Dealing professionally with the public isn't a peripheral part of being a police officer. It's at the heart it.

Sincerely,

John Jackson
Amherst, MA

Sir,

While investigating a separate incident a suspect in my case provided information about a stolen firearm from possibly your jurisdiction. Unfortunately this person does not remember the town's name but stated it was in the Boston area and began with an "M". This incident would have occurred in June 2014 and a .45 caliber handgun with a wooden grip was stolen from the bedroom area of the residence. The gun was stolen by [REDACTED] while working at a job site for the company Building Efficiencies of Nashua, NH. I am right now trying to locate where the theft of a firearm occurred, so if this incident rings a bell please reach out to me. Thank you for your time.
